c. UN Women Terms of Reference

1. Introduction

a. Background/Context for required services/results

Phase II of the regional programme, 'Implementing Norms, Changing Minds' aims to end gender-based discrimination and violence against women (VAW) in the Western Balkans (Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo*, Montenegro, the Republic of North Macedonia and Serbia) and Turkey, with a particular focus on the most disadvantaged groups of women. The Programme is anchored in the normative frameworks of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) and the Council of Europe Convention on preventing and combating VAW and domestic violence (Istanbul Convention)<sup>1</sup>, and is also in alignment with EU accession standards. The Programme is funded by the European Commission within the Instrument for Pre- Accession Assistance (IPA) II.

The programme supports the development of an enabling legislative and policy environment on eliminating VAW and all forms of discrimination; promotes favorable social norms and attitudes to prevent gender discrimination and VAW; and pursues empowering women and girls (including those from disadvantaged groups) who have experienced discrimination or violence to advocate for and use available, accessible, and quality services. The programme channels its interventions through and for civil society organizations (CSOs), in particular women's organizations, with an emphasis on those working and representing women from minorities and disadvantaged groups. Phase II is expected to last eighteen months and will start the day after Phase I of the programme (February 2017 to January 2020) ends.

As a State Party to CEDAW, based on general recommendations no. 19 and 35 of the CEDAW Committee, Turkey has an obligation to both prevent VAW and provide support and redress for survivors of violence. In terms of regional mechanisms, the Istanbul Convention, which Turkey ratified in 2012, is the only international treaty that solely seeks to tackle VAW. It includes multiple obligations that are linked with the establishment and provision of services for survivors of VAW.

The Istanbul Convention distinguishes between general and specialist support services. Furthermore, Article 19 of the Convention outlines the requirement for adequate and timely information on available support services and legal measures that must be made available and understandable for survivors; for instance, through translations of available information into languages that survivors understand. Adequate information must clarify where survivors can receive specific types of help (in languages other than the national language(s), if necessary) and must be available in a timely manner, implying at a time when survivors need to access it.

In line with the requirements of Law No. 6284, Turkey's support services are comprised of Violence Prevention and Monitoring Centers (ŞÖNİMs), first admission stations, women's shelters and other services. The 2018 GREVIO Baseline Report recommends that Turkey should take measures to ensure that "(1) protection and support services are based on a gendered understanding of violence and through training and other appropriate means relevant service providers are developed specialist capacities/skills to recognize the gendered dynamics, impact and consequences of violence; (2) protective measures contribute to the empowerment of victims and (3) in addition to state-run services, alternative, low threshold specialist services, namely services provided by NGOs, are available."<sup>2</sup>

The GREVIO Baseline Evaluation Report called on Turkey to "promote programmes and activities for the empowerment of women and girls by countering discriminatory stereotypes, as a means of upholding their right to live a life free of violence," while also engaging men and boys to promote women's equality and prevent VAW. In particular, the report suggests that Turkey should develop awareness-raising programmes that involve the active contributions of women's CSOs in the design and implementation processes, promote gender-sensitive teaching materials and closely monitor the usage of these materials, and design and implement systemic and mandatory in-service training on VAW for professionals.<sup>3</sup>

For UN Women, references to Kosovo shall be understood to be in the context of UN Security Council Resolution 1244 (1999).

Civil society organizations, in particular women's organizations, play a crucial role in the promotion of gender equality and women's rights. They are key advocacy stakeholders that force governments to move from commitment to international normative standards to their implementation. They are also key stakeholders in the provision of services that are essential in the establishment of multi-sectoral and coordinated mechanisms to adequately respond to the needs of victims of violence. Furthermore, women's organizations are instrumental in bringing to the attention of policy makers the perspective and voices of all women and in facilitating the required behavioural and attitudinal changes for tackling the structural barriers that are in the way of achieving gender equality and ending VAW

Where multiple discriminations are present, women's access to available services is more limited. More efforts are needed to ensure that justice services and any specialist services provided to women survivors of violence are in line with the Istanbul Convention standards, and that women are able to access those services without any burden and experiencing secondary traumatization.

b. General Overview of services required/results

The commitments made through the Istanbul Convention are seen as an opportunity for progress by many actors in the region, particularly in Turkey. The Convention provides a clear road map and an operational recipe for implementation and requires the active involvement of civil society. Furthermore, it recognizes the greater risk faced by groups of women who are subject to intersectional discrimination (e.g. refugee and migrant women, women with disabilities, women living in rural areas, women from ethnic minorities, etc.) and calls for the effective cooperation of state agencies with CSOs.

A major challenge in the protection of the rights of women is the low awareness and/or implementation regarding laws and policies, both amongst enforcement agencies and the general population. The European Commission (EC) notes that although there is a legislative and institutional framework on gender equality in place, there is a gap between existing framework and its implementation. This gap results in low quality of support services available. The EC also draws attention to "the lack of strong political commitment to gender equality, exemplified by frequent public statements of high-level officials reflecting a conservative view of the role of women."<sup>4</sup> In this context, awareness-raising campaigns in the fight against stereotypes, discrimination (including gender-based) and domestic violence, and in the fight for gender equality in general are of the utmost importance.

This is particularly true for marginalized women who often lack knowledge about their rights and the services available to them, which leads to low levels of assertiveness in claiming their rights. The 2007 General Assembly resolution on the Intensification of Efforts to Eliminate All Forms of Violence against Women calls on states to give regard to women who need special attention in the development of policies to address violence, such as women belonging to minority groups, including those based on ethnicity, and migrant women.<sup>5</sup>

During Phase I, the regional programme, 'Implementing Norms, Changing Minds' endeavored to support women's access to quality services. This involved building the capacity of female lawyers, working as pro bono legal support to survivors of VAW, to familiarize them with and encourage their use of the Istanbul Convention, CEDAW, and relevant European Court of Human Rights decisions. In order to widen and institutionalize this access to justice, the programme subsequently included the Bar Association in this activity, particularly lawyers in women's rights centers. Additionally, the programme supported case and fact-based data collection on women's rights to alimony after divorce, to contribute to the current public debate on this issue. Finally, the programme supported the dissemination of existing legal rights and mechanisms for survivors of VAW in Turkey to the Syrian women refugee community, reaching out to 1,276 Syrian women.

Bearing in mind that more efforts are needed to ensure the quality of service provision and women's access to services, UN Women is issuing a Call for Proposals (CfP) to select a responsible party to contribute to the programme Specific Objective 3: To empower women and girls (including those from disadvantaged groups) who have experienced discrimination or violence to advocate for and use available, accessible and quality services and more specifically to Output 3.3: Better access to and improved service provision for women from minority and disadvantaged groups.

The overall goal of this Call for Proposals is to increase women's access to justice and/or specialist services in Turkey, particularly the most marginalized groups of women.

<sup>5</sup> United Nations General Assembly (2007) Intensification of Efforts to Eliminate All Forms of Violence against Women, A/RES/61/145, art 8(f).

The expected result of the project is increased knowledge regarding and access to justice and/or specialist services that are available for women survivors of violence and discrimination, particularly for the most marginalized groups of women.

2. Description of required services/results

The planned interventions will focus on promoting the right of women to receive information about available justice and specialist support services for survivors of violence. Furthermore, the planned interventions will promote access to those services, address state and non-state service providers' capacity building needs and develop models for the establishment of non-existing services in line with the Istanbul Convention (e.g., rape crisis centres, risk assessment and management mechanisms, etc.). With a view to achieving output 3.3: Better access to and improved service provision for women from minority and disadvantaged groups, it is expected that the selected CSO will, inter alia:

- Ensure the provision of services is based on a gendered understanding of violence, is not dependent on the survivors' decision to press charges, and targets survivors' empowerment;
- Ensure the information provided to survivors is comprehensive, practical, and tailor-made, to ensure their immediate access to support, and to guide them with accurate information through their decision-making process;
- Ensure support services are offered in a wide spectrum and are in line with the Istanbul Convention's quality standards;
- Design and implement innovative cutting-edge campaigns to inform women about their rights and justice services available to them, including marginalized women;
- Improve information systems for women to seize opportunities to access justice, including marginalized women;
- Ensure that women, and in particular marginalized women, are informed about local and national referral mechanisms for victims of sexual and gender-based violence and how to gain access to the formal justice mechanism.

All knowledge products and communications materials that would be produced under this agreement must acknowledge the support of and seek the approval of UN Women. Furthermore, they should be in line with the EU Communication and Visibility tools and the EU-UN joint visibility guidelines.<sup>6</sup>

11. Evaluation of technical and financial proposal

11.1. PHASE I – TECHNICAL PROPOSAL (70 points)

- 11.1.1. Only proponents meeting the mandatory criteria will advance to the technical evaluation in which maximum possible 70 points may be determined. Technical evaluators who are members of an Evaluation Committee appointed by UNWOMEN will carry out the technical evaluation applying the evaluation criteria and point ratings as listed below. In order to advance beyond Phase I of the detailed evaluation process to Phase II (financial evaluation) a proposal must have achieved a minimum cumulative technical score of 50 points.

1	Proposal is compliant with the call for proposal requirements	15 points
2	The organizations mandate is relevant to the work to be undertaken in the TORs	20 points
3	The proposal demonstrates a sound understanding of the requirements of the TOR and indicates that the organization has the prerequisite capacity to undertake the work successfully	35 points
	TOTAL	70 points

11.2. PHASE II - FINANCIAL PROPOSAL (30 points)

- 11.2.1. Financial proposals will be evaluated following completion of the technical evaluation. The proponent with the lowest evaluated cost will be awarded 30 points. Other financial proposals will receive pro-rated points based on the relationship of the proponents' prices to that of the lowest evaluated cost

Formula for computing points:
Points = (A/B) Financial Points

Example: Proponent A's price is the lowest at $10.00. Proponent A receives 30 points. Proponent B's price is $20.00. Proponent B receives ($10.00/$20.00) x 30 points = 15 points

12. Preparation of proposal

- 12.1. You are expected to examine all terms and instructions included in the CFP documents. Failure to provide all requested information will be at proponent's own risk and may result in rejection of proponent's proposal.
- 12.2 Proponent's proposal must be organized to follow the format of this CFP. Each proponent must respond to every stated request or requirement and indicate that proponent understands and confirms acceptance of UNWOMEN stated requirements. The proponent should identify any substantive assumption made in preparing its proposal. The deferral of a response to a question or issue to the contract negotiation stage is not acceptable. Any item not specifically addressed in the proponent's proposal will be deemed as accepted by the proponent. The terms "proponent" and "contractor" refer to those organizations that submit a proposal pursuant to this CFP.
- 12.3 Where the proponent is presented with a requirement or asked to use a specific approach, the proponent must not only state its acceptance, but also describe, where appropriate, how it intends to comply. Failure to provide an answer to an item will be considered an acceptance of the item. Where a descriptive response is requested, failure to provide the same will be viewed as non-responsive.
- 12.4 The terms of reference in this document provides a general overview of the current operation. If the proponent wishes to propose alternatives or equivalents, the proponent must demonstrate that any such proposed change is equivalent or superior to UNWOMEN established requirements. Acceptance of such changes is at the sole discretion of UNWOMEN.
- 12.5 Proposals must offer services for the total requirement, unless otherwise permitted in the CFP document. Proposals offering only part of the services/goods may be rejected unless permitted otherwise in the CFP document.
- 12.6 Proponent's proposal shall include all of the following labelled annexes:
